

SQL Join Exercises

1. List all employees along with their department names, but only include departments that have employees.
2. Find employees who are managers and list their department names.
3. Count how many employees work in each department, including departments with no employees.
4. Find all departments with more than one employee.
5. List employees who do not belong to any department.
6. List all employees with their department names, sorted by department name and then by employee last name.
7. Find departments where all employees have the job title of 'Developer'.
8. List the first and last names of employees along with their department names, showing only those employees who are in the 'Marketing' department.
9. Find the employee with the longest last name in each department.
10. List departments with no employees, if any.
11. List all employees who share the same job title as someone else.
12. Display the average length of last names per department.
13. Find employees who do not have a job title assigned.
14. List the number of unique job titles in each department.
15. Find all employees whose department name ends with the letter 'g'.
16. Find the department with the highest number of employees.
17. List employees with their department names and job titles, sorted by job title in ascending order and then by last name.